

Holding on to dignity

You use your pockets for chapstick, loose change, and occasionally an ID. Imagine the shame of using them every day for soap, toothpaste, and medicine. Unfortunately, for many homeless women in Atlanta, pockets aren't just for looks and small objects – they're the only haven for necessary health and hygiene items.

With your help, the Mocha Moon Beauty and Books Foundation will help dozens of homeless women consolidate and carry their possessions by donating cosmetic organizer bags to Atlanta Mission. In addition, the foundation will donate formula, diapers, books, and other essentials to these women who hope for a better life while struggling to care for themselves and their children.

From now through February, when you make a purchase from Mocha Moon, a portion of the proceeds will benefit the homeless women and children of Atlanta Mission. Or visit us online at www.beautyandbooks.org to make a donation of just $2 or more to support the cause.

So many homeless women have nothing.
Let's give them something to hold on to.
